

Since Indiana enacted the No call list for telemarketers my life at home has improved 100%. No longer am I being bombarded with telemarketing calls from 7am-midnight. I can eat my dinner with my family in peace. My answering machine is no longer filled to capacity with worthless "I want to sell you something" messages.

Please do NOT take away the ability for the individual states to regulate this no call list. If I recall my history correctly, enabling power at the state level is a key point of Americans freedoms. Those that want don't like the way Indiana runs their state have the freedom to choose another state in which to reside that more fits their lifestyle, and I will defend their right to do so!
Thanks!

Mike Booher

Indiana resident and United States citizen